Course Requirements for the Global Concentration

In addition to consistent engagement, participation in the cohort, experiential interaction, and the capstone project, students must also take courses which qualify for concentration credit. Students will be guided through this process by the Director of the Global Concentration, their advisor, and college counselor.

2017-18 Courses for the Global Concentration

Students must take the Global Concentration Cohort for all four semesters of the program. It must be taken as a 6th course and may be taken as a 7th course. During the program, eight semesters of coursework from the classes listed below over are also required. Courses should be from three different departments. This list will be reviewed annually.

Math
Discrete Math with Applications
*AP Statistics in 18-19

Science
AP Environmental Science
Natural Disasters
Principles in Engineering

History
AP US and Comparative Government and Politics
Comparative Indigenous Histories
Global Affairs
Global Economics
Human Rights

Language
AP Language and Culture courses
AP Spanish Literature
Le monde francophone
Chinese Cultural Studies
Contemporary Civilization and Culture of Latin America
Conversación y cultura del mundo hispano
Culture and Current Events of the Hispanic World

English
AP Language and Composition: World Cultures
Global Literacies
Senior English: Language, Culture and Identity through Dialogue and Literary Text
Multiliteracies

Fine and Performing Arts
AP Art History